

*Enjoy life with the woman you love
all the days of your life...
Ecc. 9:9a (New life version)*

Traveling is something we enjoy doing together. Sometimes it is an annual trip to a beach vacation, other times it is a family vacation to a new destination, and occasionally it is an anniversary trip to an exotic location. Whichever the case may be, a trip is always exciting to plan, and we come back with some new memories. One trip that is essential in any marriage, is a trip down memory lane. Go back to the beginning, to the days of butterflies in your stomach, or to the early days of married life when you were just learning how to live together. Maybe your trip down memory lane takes you to a place that was difficult, but you got through it together. Maybe you can pull out a photo album and travel back to that sweet place you both loved and revisit in your mind or virtually. You may find yourselves remembering different things which is always nice. Going down memory lane is necessary in a marriage, to remind you how far you have come and that you would choose them all over again.

This week make a “date” with your spouse and travel down memory lane together. Grab an album, make some notes or ask some questions. Maybe make some plans for another trip!
